ezra pound the poet called the contemporary of our grandchildren has exercised enormous influence on the development of american poetry and criticism this impact on the world of letters is only grudgingly acknowledged today since it comes from a poet tainted by fascism and anti semitism this book follows the contours of our love for his poetics and hate for his politics juxtaposing pound s work to postmodern theory the contrasts prevail in the relation of language to reality in the moral and political commitments and in the vision of history at the same time pound s poetic practices particularly his collage techniques and series of englishes overflowed his political ideology it is this overflow that makes him so fascinating to intellectuals and the main reason we study his work with respect now proust himself supplied his postmodern critics with much of the rhetoric that has been used to call his triumphalist masterly narrative into question by shifting the emphasis from the book as an architectural completed achievement to the reader engaged in an endless uncertain process of reinterpretation gray allows us to see a new unsettling profoundly skeptical postmodern proust mourning modernism postmodernism illuminates the emergence of a fundamentally new way of thinking and writing about loss in the twentieth century novel one that spurns consolation and the conventional aim of closure inaugurated in the modernist novel the rejection of consolation manages to promote a politically progressive politics of mourning the modernist novel established as well the terms of a new mourning practice terms whose democratizing aims would be challenged in the late modernist period but ultimately reanimated and reworked by postmodern writers in challenging the familiar view of modernist aesthetics as removed from social concerns and of postmodernist aesthetics as a self reflexive language game incapable of representing affirmative content mourning modernism postmodernism demonstrates how novelists of some of the most experimental fiction of the century engage the open ended aspects of loss to imagine new forms of identity and social change
