discover the power of dialogue to heal religious division how can members of different faith traditions approach each other with openness and respect how can they confront the painful conflicts in their history and overcome theological misconceptions for more than twenty years professors Mary C. Boys and Sara S. Lee have explored ways that Catholics and Jews might overcome mistrust and misunderstandings in order to promote commitment to religious pluralism at its best interreligious dialogue entails not simply learning about the other from the safety of one's own faith community but rather engaging in specific learning activities with members of the other faith learning in the presence of the other drawing upon examples from their own experience Boys and Lee lay out a framework for engaging the religious other in depth with vision and insight they discuss ways of fostering relationships among participants and with key texts beliefs and practices of the other's tradition in this groundbreaking resource they offer a guide for members of any faith tradition who want to move beyond the rhetoric of interfaith dialogue and into the demanding yet richly rewarding work of developing new understandings of the religious other and of one's own tradition this book inquires as to whether theological dialogue between Christians and Jews is possible not only in itself but also as regards the emergence of communities of messianic Judaism in light of David Novak's insights Matthew Levering proposes that Christian theological responses to supersessionism need to preserve both the Church's development of doctrine and rabbinic Judaism's ability to define its own boundaries the book undertakes constructive philosophical theology in dialogue with Novak exploring the interrelated doctrines of divine providence theonomy the image of God and natural law Levering places Novak's work in conversation especially with Thomas Aquinas whose approach fosters a rich dialogue with Novak's broadly Maimonidean perspective it focuses upon the relationship of human beings to the creator with attention to the philosophical entailments of Jewish and Christian covenantal commitments aiming to spell out what true freedom involves it concludes by asking whether
